Seminars in Speech and Language (SSL) is a peer-reviewed journal that covers the entire spectrum of speech-language pathology. Each published article, whether invited or openly submitted, serves as a seminar whereby readers are provided with learning outcomes that can be achieved through reading the article.

The mission of SSL is to improve speech language pathology services by helping professionals and pre-professionals in their career development and lifelong learning. Topics can include: theoretical questions or issues, diagnostic procedures, screening and assessment techniques, treatment protocols, intervention studies, service delivery, management practices, scholarship on teaching and learning. These can be across any area within the scope of practice for speech-language pathology.

Seminars in Speech and Language is currently not offering CEU credits. Please visit ASHA for alternative options.
